Beyond Cambridge: Life Sciences in The Suburbs

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 2018

Location: Morgan Lewis, One Federal St., Boston
Registration 11:45 AM | Program 12:00 – 1:15 PM

The Greater Boston lab market is currently experiencing a historic level of tenant demand and market strength. As the global hub of R&D for the life sciences industry, Cambridge has become increasingly competitive with limited availability and soaring rents. Priced out or with nowhere to grow, many life sciences tenants have recognized the added value the suburbs provide. No longer just a lower cost alternative, the suburbs are becoming an attractive option due to strategic investments in the suburban markets, as landlords lure tenants with Class A amenities and new developments.

Please join our panel of investors, developers and brokers as we discuss Greater Boston's growing suburban life science clusters and potential opportunities in the lab space.
